Green Certification

Green Cleaning has become a critical factor in the Janitorial & Sanitation industry over the past 15+ years. During this time green chemistry was advanced to provide equivalent efficacy & durability as is found in traditional formulations. Consumers can be confident that truly green product options can meet or exceed all their expectations. In Canada products which are truly green must be certified by a trusted and recognized source.

TODAY, UL Environment handles the certification of sustainable products for Environment Canada. Products are put through stringent validation and testing, providing the consumer with assurances that any product which displays the UL Ecologo is certified and can be trusted to be truly GREEN.

"Green washing"

This is a blanket term which describes all products in our market which make a green claim but really are not. A product can be green even if it does not carry a UL certification by virtue of its formulation... but many are not qualified to make this claim. Institutions, Leeds certified members, and progressive private sector companies are all driving a growing demand for truly green chemistry — Armstrong Manufacturing Inc. is a trusted source for green product options.
